Bucharest, January 30th, 2025

Dear Colleagues,

We have the pleasure to inform you that on Friday, Oct. 3rd and Saturday, Oct. 4th, 2025, the Department of Russian and Slavic Philology of the University of Bucharest, Faculty of Foreign Languages and Literatures, under the aegis of the Association of Slavic Studies, will organize the 13th edition of the international symposium Romanian Slavic Studies and Dialogue of Cultures.

The first day will be with physical presence at our faculty, the second day online as well. You are expected to arrive in Bucharest on Thursday, October 2nd.

The following topics of debates are welcome, but other topics are also accepted.

- The study of Slavic languages and cultures in Europe and other parts of the world
- Perspectives and challenges in linguistics
- New methods and approaches of literary phenomena
- Mentalities
- Imagologic structures
- Translations and inter-cultural communication
- Teaching foreign languages in the digital era
- A Millennium of Polish Statehood: Tradition, Identity and Cultural Memory
- Round and Not-So-Round Anniversaries

The languages of the symposium are: Romanian, all the Slavic languages, English and French.

You are hereby invited to participate in this important scientific and cultural event of our academic community. The participation fee is € 15 (70 RON), partially covering the costs of organizing the conference and publishing the contributions in „Romanoslavica", after peer review evaluation.
